Summary: Are the Bible's stories about Egypt simply mythology as critics suggest, or is there proof in Egypt's own ancient writings?

The Bible stories concerning the relationship of God's people with Egypt have been subject to much ridicule. Critics regard Biblical stories, such as the accounts of Joseph and the Exodus, as mythology.

The stones of archaeology were silent witnesses to the dramas of the past, and it was only after 1799, when the Rosetta Stone was discovered, that the ancient records could be deciphered. It took Jean-François Champollion 20 years to decipher the ancient hieroglyphics from the Rosetta Stone. The Stone was unique in that three languages were inscribed upon it, each telling the same story. The science of archaeology is thus a fledgling science, and most of its treasures have only been subject to scrutiny in the last century.

Today it is possible to not only read hieroglyphics, but also the ancient cuneiform writings. Astoundingly, the ancient relics have succeeded in silencing many of the Biblical critics. The harmony between Scripture and archaeological findings has shed new light upon the debate.

Concerning the story of Joseph, it is known that the Semitic Hyksos overthrew the Egyptian dynasties for a period of just over a quarter of a century. During this time, it would have been possible for a Semite to reach the position of prestige occupied by Joseph. In recent times, frescoes have been found in Egyptian tombs depicting fat and thin cows, and inscriptions have been found referring to seven lean and seven opulent years, making this Biblical story more than just a myth. One of the most exciting stories in Scripture, however, is the Exodus.

According to Biblical chronology, Moses was born in 1530 BC, during the reign of Tutmoses I, who ruled from 1532 to 1508 BC. Tutmoses I was the third pharaoh of the 18th dynasty. The first pharaoh was Amoses 1570 to 1553 BC, followed by Amenhotep 1553 to 1532 BC, who was the father of Tutmoses I. This is the pharaoh who issued the decree that all the sons born to the Israelites were to be thrown into the river, but that girls were permitted to live (Exodus 1:22).

Aaron, the brother of Moses, was born in 1533 BC, prior to the reign of Tutmoses I, and he had thus escaped the vicious decree. According to Biblical chronology, Moses fled Egypt 40 years after his birth in 1490 BC (Remember, we have to calculate backwards, as we are dealing with the time before Christ). Exodus 2:15 tells us about Pharaoh's reaction:

"When Pharaoh heard of this, he tried to kill Moses, but Moses fled from Pharaoh, and went to live in Midian" (NIV).

It was here, in Midian of Sinai, that the Lord revealed Himself to Moses. Two pharaohs reigned simultaneously during the exile of Moses. Tutmoses I, who issued the decree to kill the newborn sons of the Israelites, was the father of Hatshepsut, the princess who is the most likely candidate for having found Moses in the Nile. It is probable that Moses grew up as a foster child in the house of Pharaoh. Tutmoses I had no sons, and, upon his death in 1508 BC, Moses could have become the pharaoh, but he declined. Acts 7:20 tells us, "Moses was educated in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was powerful in speech and action."

In Hebrews 11:24, we are told, "By faith Moses, when he had grown up, refused to be known as the son of Pharaoh's daughter."

After Moses' refusal, Tutmoses II (the husband of Hatshepsut) became pharaoh, but he only ruled from 1508 to 1504 BC, a period of just four years. Again, Moses could have become pharaoh, but again he refused. Hatshepsut herself became the next pharaoh. Her mortuary temple is at Deir el Bahri, and she ruled Egypt from 1504 to 1482 BC; a total of 22 years. The illegitimate son of Hatshepsut's husband became co-regent together with her. He was Tutmoses III, who was favored by the Egyptian priesthood.

The story of Hatshepsut is a sad story. In 1488, six years prior to her death, all official records of Hatshepsut ceased. Her royal wall paintings on the walls of her mortuary temple at Deir el Bahri were defaced, and her statues were destroyed. To this day, only a few small busts have been found. Such drastic action was only taken if pharaohs were disloyal to Egyptian deities. It is probable that Hatshepsut adopted the Hebrew religion in 1488, when Egyptian documentation about her ceased. Moses at this time was already in exile, having fled before the wrath of Tutmoses III, who enjoyed the support of the Egyptian priesthood.

Moses heard about the death of Hatshepsut while he was in exile, and her death is recorded in his writings. Exodus 2:23 states, "During that long period, the king of Egypt died." The sole ruler in Egypt was now Tutmoses III, and with Hatshepsut out of the way, and the protection she probably afforded the Israelites no longer available, Tutmoses suppressed them in a most cruel fashion.

"The Israelites groaned in their slavery and cried out, and their cry for help because of their slavery went up to God. God heard their groanings and...looked on the Israelites and was concerned about them" (Exodus 2:23-25).

The return of Moses and his fear for Pharaoh is now understandable, particularly since the same pharaoh that induced him to flee became the sole ruler in Egypt.

Tutmoses III was one of the greatest pharaohs in history. He was known as the Napoleon of Egypt. He ruled until 1450 BC, which, according to the chronology in 1 Kings 6:1, is the year of the Exodus. According to the Bible, the Exodus took place on March 17, 1450 BC. The precise dates of the Passover and the Exodus are recorded in the Scriptures. The Bible tells us that the pharaoh then ruling (Tutmoses III) followed the Israelites through the Red Sea, and that he was killed in the process. The biography of Tutmoses III, written by Amenemhab says, "Lo, the king completed his lifetime of many years, splendid in valour, in might and triumph: from year 1 to 54."

1504 to 1450, a reign of 54 years, brings us precisely to the date of the Exodus. Amenemhab mentions the month and the day of his death:

"The last day of the third month of the second season... He mounted to heaven, he joined the sun: the divine limbs mingled with him who begot him."

According to the Egyptologist James Breasted, this translates to March 17, 1450 BC. A mummy of Tutmoses III in the Cairo museum was analyzed by two Egyptologists, Harris and Weeks, in 1973 and found to be a mummy of a young man, whereas Tutmoses III must have been at least 80.

Egyptians had a way of disguising their embarrassments. The pharaoh was probably never recovered from the Red Sea, and to hide this fact, a fake mummy was put in his place. There is more circumstantial evidence from the 18th dynasty to support this argument. Tutmoses III co-reigned with his son, Amenhotep II (after the death of Hatshepsut), and Amenhotep II was not in Egypt at the time of the Exodus, but in Syro-Palestine suppressing an uprising with most of the Egyptian army. According to Egyptian writings, he returned in June 1450 BC, when he apparently defaced many Egyptian monuments. This act needs an explanation. The Bible tells us that all the first-born in Egypt died in the last plague. On returning to Egypt, he would have found not only the Israelites gone, but he would have also found his father dead, and his first-born son killed in the plague. One can now understand the emotion felt by Amenhotep that caused such a violent outburst.

The next pharaoh to rule was Tutmoses IV, who was the second born son of Amenhotep II. According to succession rights, the first-born should have become pharaoh, but he died. To explain this apparent anomaly, there is an inscription on the Sphinx telling the story of how the second-born son became pharaoh in the place of the first-born. Apparently, Tutmoses IV was resting between the legs of the Sphinx when he heard a voice telling him to clear the sand from between the legs, and the Sphinx would see to it that he, rather than the first-born, would be the next pharaoh. An unlikely story, and another demonstration of attempts to cloud the issue, so that the embarrassment should not be made public to the descendants.

Monotheistic worship in Egypt did not die with the death of Hatshepsut. During the Amarna Period of the 18th dynasty, monotheism again surfaced in Egypt. The pharaoh after Tutmoses IV was Amenhotep III. This son of Tutmoses IV was still an idolater, but during the reign of his son (Amenhotep IV), the religion of Egypt shifted from the worship of Amun to that of Aten. Atenism was the worship of the one Creator God. The symbol of the sun and its rays was used to describe Aten's care for mankind. The sun was not worshiped in Atenism, but served merely as a symbol. There is good evidence that Atenism has its basis in the Hebrew religion.

The Exodus must have left its mark upon the Egyptian people, and many adhered to the God of the Hebrews, rather than to the Egyptian deities. The essence of the Egyptian religion was that of sun worship, but numerous gods played secondary roles in their belief system. Amenhotep IV changed his name to Akhenaten, symbolizing the change from Amun worship to Aten worship (Amenhotep means "Amun is pleased"). Further evidence of Akhenaten's break with the old religion is that he shifted his capital from Luxor to a new capital Akhetaten. In a song written by Akhenaten to his god, there are 17 verses corresponding with Psalm 104.

Under Akhenaten's influence, Egyptian culture experienced a period of realism. In statues of pharaohs and their families, pharaohs were no longer depicted as larger than life, but statues of Akhenaten and his family portray him with all his defects, and his wife and children are portrayed in a loving bonding relationship with the pharaoh. His wife was the famous Nefertiti, whose name means "maiden of joy." They had six daughters, of which one was engaged to a young man by the name of Tutankaten. The daughter's name was Ankensenpaaten. Note that the names end in "aten," portraying their mode of worship. Upon the death of Akhenaten, Tutankaten was to become the next pharaoh. However, his change of name to Tutankamun indicates that his pharaohship was subject to the change of his religion. The greatest archaeological finds concern this pharaoh, and tell the story of a short but splendid reign.

Was it worth giving up the truth for the sake of earthly glory? The defacing of the statues associated with the reign of Akhenaten again demonstrates the hatred and rivalry between idolatry and the worship of the Creator God.

"EXPLORATION

Text of THE ARIZONA
GAZETTE of April 5th, 1909
article

"...The latest news of the progress of the explorations of what is now regarded by scientists as not only the oldest archeological discovery in the United States, but one of the most valuable in the world, which was mentioned some time ago in the Gazette, was brought to the city yesterday by G.E. Kinkaid, the explorer who found the great underground citadel of the Grand Canyon during a trip from Green River, Wyoming, down the Colorado, in a wooden boat, to Yuma, several months ago.

According to the story related to the Gazette by Mr. Kinkaid, the archeologists of the Smithsonian Institute [1], which is financing the expeditions, have made discoveries which almost conclusively prove that the race which inhabited this mysterious cavern, hewn in solid rock by human hands, was of oriental origin, possibly from Egypt, tracing back to Ramses. If their theories are borne

Excerpt from "Archeological Coverups" by David Hatcher
Childress

"...Perhaps the most amazing suppression of all is the excavation of an Egyptian tomb
by the Smithsonian itself in Arizona. A lengthy front page story of the PHOENIX
GAZETTE on 5
April 1909 (follows this article), gave a highly detailed report of the discovery and excavation of a rock-cut vault by an expedition led by a Professor S.A.

Jordan of the Smithsonian. The Smithsonian,
however, claims to have absolutely no knowledge of the discovery or its discoverers.

The World
Explorers Club decided to check on this story by calling the Smithsonian in Washington, D.C., though we felt there was little chance of getting any real information. After speaking briefly to an operator, we were transferred to a Smithsonian staff archaeologist, and a woman's voice came on the phone and identified herself.

I told her that I was investigating a story from a 1909
Phoenix newspaper article about the Smithsonian Institution's having excavated rock-cut vaults in the Grand Canyon where Egyptian artefacts had been discovered, and whether the Smithsonian Institution could give me any more information on the subject.

"Well, the first thing I can tell you, before we go any further," she said, "is that no Egyptian artefacts of any kind have ever been found in North or South America. Therefore, I can tell you that the Smithsonian Institute has never been involved in any such excavations." She was quite helpful and polite but, in the end, knew nothing. Neither she nor anyone else with whom I spoke could find any record of the discovery or either G.E. Kinkaid and Professor S.A. Jordan. While it cannot be discounted that the entire story is an elaborate newspaper hoax, the fact that it was on the front page, named the prestigious Smithsonian Institution, and gave a highly detailed story that went on for several pages, lends a great deal to its credibility. It is hard to believe such a story could have come out of thin air. Is the Smithsonian Institution covering up an archaeological discovery of immense importance?..."

King Necho II of Kemet(egypt) ordered his naval commanders and astrologers to circumvent the African continent as far back as 600 BC. The expedition was a success and returned home to receive encomiums from the delighted king.

Evidence now points to Nubia-Kemet as the place where the Africans first left for the Americas, either as traders or as an armada of the Kemet army.

The first pyramid in the Americas was built at a ceremonial location. Commenting on the American pyramids, Dr Ivan Van Sertima says in his book, African Presence In Early America:“The pyramids are placed on a north south axis, as all Egyptian and Nubian pyramids are placed.[The] pyramids combine the same double function, tomb and temple...[The] great pyramid in Teotihuacan [225 metres sq] has a pyramidal base almost identical in proportion to that of the bases of the Great Pyramid in Egypt [226.5 metres sq]”.

In fact the same standard of measurements that was developed by the mathematicians and astrologers of Kemet was employed in Ancient America. It follows that the “foreigners”(the Africans) did find, or were welcomed by, a native elite whom they could influence, hence the preservation of the African elite in royal temples in the Americas.

1. The step pyramid of the Egyptians closely resembles the step pyramid in America.

2. The Double Crown of Lower and Upper Egypt with the bird and the serpent is also found in Olmec culture with Upper and Lower Egypt being North America and South America.

3. The Mexicans have four calendars. The fourth calendar is identical to the Egyptian calendar.

4. In Mexico, there was found a type of paper made from wood pulp that scientist say can only be found in Egypt.

5. The ceremonial dance of the Hopi Indians is identical to the Dogon's Bado dance of Africa, using the same symbols and spirit names.

6. Various tribes as the Osage and Apache uses the crescent moon symbol

The Olmec /Mayan/Aztec civilizations are given credit for all of the scientific

, astronomical, agricultural, architectural/engineering pyramid and mound building advancement that took place in Ancient America. The natives of the land of Mexico, Central America, and the Yucatan, specifically the Quiche (Kush/Kish ) people of Mayaland say that their ancestors were Israelites. In history they were the 18th Dynasty Amarna Nation that left Ta Moor-ai [Egypt/Africa] and fled to the ~Middle East and ~America. The Quiche, who are a native tribe in Mexico report this origin to priests in ~Mysteries of the Mexican Pyramids by Peter Tompkins, These then were the three Nations of Quiches, and they came from where the sun rises , descendants of Israel, of the same language and the same customs.

Yes it is true, Moses [Tahit Mose] was in America and that Moses, who historically is Pharaoh Akhnaton, left a statue of Himself in San Martin Pajapan in an extinct volcano that was the cite of an ancient priesthood established by the Moors (Egyptians).He also left the only Egyptian Style Burial Tomb and mummy in North America in Palenque, Mexico in the Temple of Incriptions. The hieroglyphics show the Egyptian Ennead on the walls of the Temple and even show the hieroglyphics of Votan as having the same attributed physical handicap as noted Pharaoh Akhnaton possessed. This handicap was a part of an Ancient Egyptian belief and was attributed to Horus or Harpocrates and is seen in the Hieroglyphics of Pacal in the West and Akhnaton in the East. It was symbolic of the position Pacal or Akhnaton held in the Osiris (Messianic) Traditions. The purpose for these voyages was to find the Lost Civilizations of their Ancestors, who resided in what historically they called Ta Neteru or Yaru, The Land of the Gods, commonly called Atlantis.

Many red Native Americans that I have run into are well aware of the information that I have just presented to you, some are not aware. Tribes like Hopi, Aztec, Apache, Pueblo, Seminole, Creek, Tuscarora, Susquehanna, have documents in their possession that tells of the stories of the black Gods who gave birth to them.

In fact, the Hopi book of the stars that was given to them by the Dogons tells that when the forefathers (Africans) reclaim their throne, the black and red tribes will join together and kill all of the whites. There is a similar parable in most Native American cultures that speaks of the white eagle who captured the red eagle until the black eagle freed the red eagle. The white eagle retreated in the caves from which he came. Look this story up, it's an actual story in Native American culture. It is just as important for red Native Americans to understand true history as it is for blacks in America. Blacks have been convinced that they are all ex-African slaves, of course this is a lie! There had been blacks in this country for thousand of years before the

What you read are LIES, and if anything they're artifacts purposely planted there to make up crap like this!

The Native Americans built their own pyramids, and they look more like ancient Ziggurats, not Egyptian pyramids!

The Native Americans used their pyramids for something different, and do not look just like Egyptian pyramids, so to say they were built by Egyptians is VERY stupid. Now you just look very desperate.

What Most People Fail To Overstand Is...That More Than 250,000 Years Ago, Georgia, South Carolina And Florida Was The Northern Part Of What Is Known As Africa Today. In Fact, What Is Known As Georgia, Florida And South Carolina Was Apart Of Egypt At One Time. Wahanee "The Golden City" And Egypt Of The West Has Become Common Household Names For These Territories And Locations By The True Indigenous Peoples Of These Lands. North Carolina, Tennessee, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi And Alabama Was Also Apart Of The Olmec Lands Known As Utlal And Later Became Known As Atlan. This Further Confirms That We Are Not All From Africa, But Are Indigenous To These Lands As Well. Even In Mesopotamia You Have Pyramids And Civilizations That Predate Those In Africa, So We Could Not Have All Come From Just One Location On The Planet Earth.

We Were Everywhere And We Did Not All Come From Africa, Because There Are Plenty Of Pyramids And Mounds On The Coast Of Georgia And South Carolina That Predate The Pyramids In Egypt. Most Scholars Think That Egypt Was The First Of The Great Empires, But Not Booty, The Reality Of It Is, Egypt Or Khemet Was The Last Of The Great Kingdoms. In Fact, The 18 Dynasties Of Egyptian Or Khemetian History Made Public Today Is Only The Last Of The Great Empires, Which Were Built By Indigenous Black Nobles Or Aswud Nanya Netert-aat Wa Neteraat, Other Than The Original Mayan And Aztec Empire.

Notice The Olmec Guardian Above The Mayan In Figure 2 And In Figure 4 Around The Neck, Just As Bes Was The Guardian Over Heru And Hathor In Ancient Egypt. Also Notice That The Mayan In Figure 1 And In Figure 4, Both Have A Broad Nose And Thick Lips, Like The Black People They Were.

The Egyptian Empire Came Out Of The Kish Empire Of The Nuwun, Which Was An Olmec Empire In Aswan, Sudan Or Ta Nehisi. This Empire

Originally Consisted Of Ethiopia, Sudan, Nubia, Uganda And Kenya, Long Before The Existence Of The Egyptian Empire. In Fact, The People Who Began The Egyptian Empire Were Not Born In Egypt, But Rather Nuwba, Sunnu, Ethiopia Or What Is Called Nubia Today. They Migrated To The Dessert In Egypt And Began Building. What Most People Fail To Overstand Is...That More Than 250,000 Years Ago, Georgia, South Carolina And Florida Was The Northern Part Of What

Is Known As Africa Today. In Fact, What Is Known As Georgia, Florida And South Carolina Was Apart Of Egypt At One Time. Wahanee "The Golden City" And Egypt Of The West Has Become Common Household Names For These Territories And Locations By The True Indigenous Peoples Of These Lands. North Carolina, Tennessee, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi And Alabama Was Also Apart Of The Olmec Lands Known As Utlá And Later Became Known As Atlan. This Further Confirms That We Are Not All From Africa, But Are Indigenous To These Lands As Well. Even In Mesopotamia You Have Pyramids And Civilizations That Predate Those In Africa, So We Could Not Have All Come From Just One Location On The Planet Earth.

We Were Everywhere And We Did Not All Come From Africa, Because There Are Plenty Of Pyramids And Mounds On The Coast Of Georgia And South Carolina That Predate The Pyramids In Egypt. Most Scholars Think That Egypt Was The First Of The Great Empires, But Not Booty, The Reality Of It Is, Egypt Or Khemet Was The Last Of The Great Kingdoms. In Fact, The 18 Dynasties Of Egyptian Or Khemetian History Made Public Today Is Only The Last Of The Great Empires, Which Were Built By Indigenous Black Nobles Or Aswud Nanya Netert-aat Wa Neteraat, Other Than The Original Mayan And Aztec Empire.

Notice The Olmec Guardian Above The Mayan In Figure 2 And In Figure 4 Around The Neck, Just As Bes Was The Guardian Over Heru And Hathor In Ancient Egypt. Also Notice That The Mayan In Figure 1 And In Figure 4, Both Have A Broad Nose And Thick Lips, Like The Black People They Were.

  - Controversial Davenport And Pontotoc Stele Reveal Ancient Egyptians And Black Africans Visited North America

Controversial Davenport And Pontotoc Stele Reveal Ancient Egyptians And Black Africans Visited North America

MessageToEagle.com – Is it possible to find evidence ancient Egyptians and Africans visited America in the past? Can the controversial Davenport and Pontotoc stele shed light on the mystery?

The Davenport Stele was unearthed in a burial mound in 1877 in Iowa. This curious artifact is called “The Davenport Calendar stele” or the “Djed Festival tablet”

It contains a carving of “Opening of the Mouth Ceremony” which is of Nubian/Egyptian origin. Dr. Barry Fell (1917-1994), a Harvard scholar with an avocation for ancient writings. Egyptian and Libyan explorers had sailed up the Mississippi River and left the written stone tablet, the Davenport Stele.

Proc. Acad. Nat. Sci. Davenport, Vol. II. Plate II.

However, University of Iowa archaeologist Marshall McKusick disagreed, and said the tablet was a hoax.

According to McKusick the Davenport Stele hoaxers had been members of the Davenport Academy of Science who had buried fake stone tablets “on the old Cook farm.”

They wanted to trick one of their members and then ridicule him. Dr. Barry Fell allowed that two of the three stone tablets had indeed been probable fakes.

“But the third, which he refers to as the Davenport Calendar Stele, definitely is not, he says.”

In the book, **The First Americans Were Africans: Documented Evidence**, Dr. David Imhotep writes that “the religious similarities here are numerous and sometimes not only similar, but identical to the Djed Festival of ancient Egypt. This ceremony traces back, however, before Egypt to Nubia because the Egyptian God Osiris is part of the ceremony. This means the Djed Festival predates even Egypt.”

According to Fell, the Davenport Stele contains a “trilingual text” in the Egyptian, Iberian-Punic, and Libyan languages. “This stele, long condemned as a meaningless forgery, is in fact one of the most important steles ever discovered,” wrote Dr. Fell in his book **America B. C. – Ancient Settlers in the New World**.

Davenport Stele

Dr. Fell surmised that the Davenport Stele dates back to the Twenty-second, or Libyan, Dynasty of the Egyptian empire, “a period of overseas exploration.”

On one side of the there are carvings of Egyptian writing and the festival. On the other side there is a picture of two Egyptian obelisks, a pyramid and African animals.

Another controversial and very interesting artifact is the Pontotoc stele found in Oklahoma by Gloria Farley and Weldon W. Stout.

Pontotoc stele

It is considered to be the work of an early Iberian colonist in America, as the script is that known otherwise from the Cachao-da-Rapa region in northern Portugal. It depicts the life-giving rays of the sun descending upon the earth beneath. To the left the Iberian Punic letters spell "Start of Dawn," to the right "Dusk," with the crescent-shape of the moon. Two of the panels contain Ogam Punic, partly illegible, but sufficiently clear to disclose the phrases "When Baal-Ra rises in the east, the beasts are content, and (when he hides his face), they are displeased."

The First Americans, as seen on the cover of this book, will be thoroughly covered. The picture was taken by the crew of The HMS Challenger Expedition, 1872-1876 A.D. at the most Southern region of South America, at a place called Tierra del Fuego. This picture can be seen today in the Natural Museum of London. Africans not only came before Columbus and Clovis, but were in the Americas far before any other group, at least 60,000 years ago. We will go through evidence exposed by a panel of credible scholars, professors and researchers.

The evidence lies in several different scientific fields.

Do not forget the Egyptians. They were also here far before the Vikings or Columbus. They left structures above and below the waves in far away places in North America. From the East to the West Coasts; from the valleys to mountain tops that still carry their names. You will read about remnants of their artifacts, writings, architecture and more. For years this story was hidden and forbidden to be repeated.

Researchers who dared to bring out new finds that were against the accepted history were intimidated, funding terminated and in some cases jobs and careers put in jeopardy. Authors such as Dr. Imhotep are now throwing caution to the wind and lifting the veil of secrecy never to be closed again.

This is a true history for all to learn and enjoy and there is much more on its way . . . as the veil of secrecy and concealed information is made available to the public in my future, "Lifting of the Veil Series". Read more

These identify the inscription as an extract from the Hymn to the Aton by Pharaoh Akhenaton, here translated into Iberian Punic. Further study of this remarkable stele is still in progress. Although Akhenaton's hymn dates from the 13th Century B.C., this American version can scarcely be older than about 800 B.C. The engraver who was interrupted, covered over his work with soil, and never returned to complete the blank panels.

Could these two controversial artifacts prove presence of ancient Egyptians and Africans in America? More studies need to be done before we can unravel this intriguing mystery.

However, the tablets engraved with hieroglyphics that were discovered in the lost underground city of Grand Canyon also reveal ancient Egyptian presence in America.
